Essential cultural information about community life is the topic of this collection of activities for the young ESL student.

A collection of eighteen essays, reports and reminiscences (all but one of which have previously appeared in The New Yorker as a "Letter from the East" or some other compass point).

Author writes of coons, and how a swallow builds a nest, and the way a Maine fire department attends a fire, and also of fallout, disarmament and the United Nations.

Separate Core and Foundation Books ensure that ALL pupils' needs are supported at exactly the right level.

Identical pagination and coverage of the same topics makes them easy to use. Clear objectives for each unit helps pupils understand the purpose of their work. A self-assessment checklist at the end for pupils to check and follow-up their understanding and the 360 review page at the end of each chapter provides a ready-made assessment for teachers and a useful review for pupils. A skills reference section can be used as a quick reminder and practice for skills such as drawing pictograms, bar charts and using atlases. Key words are highlighted and explained when first introduced in a unit to aid comprehension. Popular topics such as Earthquakes and Volcanoes are included in Book 3 to help maintain pupils' interest in Geography and encourage them to continue with the

have been foundational to our travel, navigation and exploration and are central to the imaginative, moral and political geography of virtually every culture in the world. Yet they are far more subjective than we might realise, and we define them in very different ways depending on our locations in time and space. The Four Points of the Compass takes the reader on a journey of directional discovery, starting with sunrise in the east, moving south to north and ending with sunset in the west.

Jerry Brotton reveals why Hebrew culture privileges east (qedem), meaning 'forward' or 'front'; why the Renaissance Europeans began drawing north at the top of their world maps; why the imperial Chinese revered the south as the place from where warm winds came; why the Aztecs used five colour-coded cardinal directions; and why no societies, primitive or modern, have ever orientated themselves westwards, the direction of darkness. Through Brotton's lens, widely used but politically loaded terms such as the 'Middle East', the 'Global South', the 'West Indies', the 'Orient' and the 'western world' can be seen afresh. He shows that the cardinal directions reflect a human desire to create order and that they only have meaning, literally

By looking at the history of the directions and their meanings in different religions and cultures, Brotton brilliantly
