Frontierza’s work on advanced hibernation technology for sleeper colony ships isn’t sexy, but what matters to Reggie is that he will have an extremely visible role leading the first team to test the technology in a month–long cryogenic sleep. The proposition is simple. Succeed and humanity has a real chance of finding a new home before Earth’s ecosystem completely collapses. Fail and ... you don’t wake up. Once again, she’s sent into Azoren Fedaration space, only this time she’s in command of a cobbled-together task force. Their orders: rescue vital intelligence data from a secret base just beyond the demilitarized zone. But the mission is compromised from the start, another disastrous mess put together by rival intelligence agencies. Beneath each layer of lies and deception, Faith finds only more betrayal. To prevent war, she must forge her own path, even if it means destroying her career. Be sure to grab Shadow Play, the second book in this riveting military space opera tale!
