

La Cura Del Malato In Casa Sulla Base Della Medicina Antroposofica

There have been extraordinary developments in the field of neuroscience in recent years, sparking a number of discussions within the legal field. This book studies the various interactions between neuroscience and the world of law, and explores how neuroscientific findings could affect some fundamental legal categories and how the law should be implemented in such cases. The book is divided into three main parts. Starting with a general overview of the convergence of neuroscience and law, the first part outlines the importance of their continuous interaction, the challenges that neuroscience poses for the concepts of free will and responsibility, and the peculiar characteristics of a “new” cognitive liberty. In turn, the second part addresses the phenomenon of cognitive and moral enhancement, as well as the uses of neurotechnology and their impacts on health, self-determination and the concept of being human. The third and last part investigates the use of neuroscientific findings in both criminal and civil cases, and seeks to determine whether they can provide valuable evidence and facilitate the assessment of personal responsibility, helping to resolve cases. The book is the result of an interdisciplinary dialogue involving jurists, philosophers, neuroscientists, forensic medicine specialists, and scholars in the humanities; further, it is intended for a broad readership interested in understanding the impacts of scientific and technological developments on people’s lives and on our social systems.

The Cure of the Heart is a poetry book, completely equipped with Italian translations, about the life of a child overcoming and growing up in an Italian American household, with a parent who has been incarcerated since she was nine years old. It is based on true events and discusses the author's personal experience with sexual assault, heartbreak, and insecurity issues. This powerful story is told through poetic stylistics and in chronological order of the author's life. It is told through the heart of New York City, constantly surviving Brooklyn and Staten Island stereotypes. This title comes from the author using writing as a way to cope with everything she was forced to overcome.

The Handbook for Liturgical Studies provides a complete course of liturgical studies in five volumes. It is offered as a model, source, and reference for students of liturgy and liturgical ministry. The Handbook for Liturgical Studies is marked by a number of traits which differentiate it from its predecessor Anamnesis, published by the Pontifical Liturgical Institute. First, the subjects in the liturgical ordo, history, and tradition are examined as sources and components of the theology of liturgy. Next, the Handbook pays significant attention to the role played by the human sciences in the liturgy (psycho-sociology, anthropology, linguistics, and the arts.) Pastoral and spiritual considerations receive appropriate treatment in light of liturgical principles, and general models based on the meaning and purpose of the liturgy are suggested. The materials of the East and the non-Roman West are integrated with the Roman, providing a comprehensive vision of Christian worship. More than forty authors from Asia, Africa, Latin America, North America, and Eastern and Western Europe have contributed to the Handbook. Many are professors and graduates of the Pontifical Liturgical Institute in Rome. Each author, while drawing material from liturgical tradition and from ancient, medieval, and modern sources, writes also from a particular research and personal interest in a subject. Although diverse in style, the authors collectively express a spirit of fidelity to the Church, to its doctrine and tradition, and to its mission. The result is a cohesive view of the meaning, purpose, and celebration of Christian worship. The editor's goal through these volumes is for students to pay particular attention to the gradual unfolding of the material from Volume I to Volume V as well as to the methodology, historical setting, theological and spiritual doctrines, and the pastoral concerns in the Handbook. Through the study of these volumes, readers are led not only to a scientific understanding of the liturgy but also to an active and spiritually fruitful participation in the ecclesial celebration of Christ's mystery desired by the Second Vatican Council. Volume IV: Sacraments and Sacramentals contributes to a deeper understanding of the nature and purpose of sacraments and sacramentals and leads the reader to a more critical appreciation of Vatican II decrees and what the postconciliar reform has implemented. This fourth volume in the Handbook for Liturgical Studies series opens with a review of the basic liturgical notion of sacraments and sacramentals and then examines them according to their earliest known form going back to the first four centuries. After the fourth century the treatment is divided between the East and the West. Where opportune, as in the case of confirmation, questions are raised about pastoral implications of the postconciliar reform. Articles and their contributors are ?Christian Initiation During the First Four Centuries,? by Adrien Nocent, O.S.B.; ?Christian Initiation in the Roman Church from the Fifth Century Until Vatican II,? by Adrien Nocent, O.S.B.; ?Reconciliation in the First Four Centuries,? by Antonio Santantoni; ?Reconciliation in the Eastern Churches,? by Nicola Bux; ?Reconciliation in Rome and the Non-Roman West,? by Antonio Santantoni; ?Anointing of the Sick During the First Four Centuries,? by Stefano Parenti; ?Care and Anointing of the Sick in the East,? by Stefano Parenti; ?The Anointing of the Sick in the West,? by Philippe Rouillard, O.S.B.; ?Orders and Ministries in the First Four Centuries,? by Antonio Santantoni; ?Ordinations in the East,? by Stefano Parenti; ?Ordination and Ministries in the West,? by Antonio Santantoni; ?The Christian Rite of Marriage in the East,? by Stefano Parenti; ?The Christian Rite of Marriage in the West,? by Adrien Nocent, O.S.B.; ?Monastic Profession in the East,? by Manel Nin, O.S.B.; ?Rite of Religious Profession in the West,? by Matias Aug., C.M.F.; ?The Rite of Consecration of Virgins,? by Nichola Emsley, O.S.B.; ?Funeral Rites in the East,? by Elena Velkova Velkovska; ?Funeral Rites in Rome and the Non-Roman West,? by Vincent Owusu, S.V.D.; ?Blessings in the East,? by Elena Velkova Velkovska; and ?Blessings in Rome and the Non-Roman West,? by Renier Kaczynski.?This is a valuable reference tool for the scholar who needs to locate the significant text in any research area on the sacraments.?

This book discusses the concept of desire as a positive factor in human growth and flourishing. All human decision-making is preceded by some kind of desire, and we act upon desires by either rejecting or following them. It argues that our views on and expressions of desire in various facets of life and through time have differed according to how human beings are taught to desire. Therefore, the concept has tremendous potential to affect human beings positively and to enable personal growth. Though excellent research has been done on the concepts of flourishing, character education and positive psychology, no other work has linked the concept of desire to all of these topics. Featuring key references, explanations of central concepts, and significant practical applications of desire to various fields of human thought and action, the book will be of interest to students and researchers in the fields of positive psychology, positive education, moral philosophy, and virtue ethics.
