a pair of jeans, that
exposes the fractures in our global supply chains, and our relationships to each other, ourselves, and the planet Take a look at your favorite pair of jeans. Maybe you bought them on Amazon or the Gap;

maybe the tag says

"Made in Bangladesh" or
"Made in Sri Lanka." But do you know where they really came from,
how many thousands of miles they crossed, or the number of hands
who picked, spun,
wove, dyed,

packaged, shipped,
and sold them to get to you? The fashion
industry operates
with radical opacity,
and it's only getting worse to disguise
countless environmental and labor abuses. It epitomizes the ravages inherent in the global economy,

and all in the name
of ensuring that we keep buying more while thinking less about its real cost. In Unraveled,
entrepreneur,
researcher, and advocate Maxine Bédard follows the life of an American

icon--a pair of jeans--to reveal what really happens to give us our clothes.

We visit a Texas
cotton farm figuring out how to thrive without relying on fertilizers that poison the earth. Inside dyeing and weaving
factories in China,

Jabatan
Perkhidmatan
Awam Jpa Gov My

where chemicals that are banned in the West slosh on

factory floors and drain into waterways used to irrigate local family farms.

Sewing floors in Bangladesh and Sri Lanka are crammed
with women
working for illegally

low wages to produce garments as efficiently as machines. Back in America, our jeans get stowed, picked, and shipped out by Amazon warehouse workers pressed to be as quick as the robots primed to replace them.

Finally, those jeans we had to have get sent to landfills--or, if they've been "donated," shipped back around the world to Africa, where they're sold for pennies in secondhand markets or buried and burned in mountains of garbage. A sprawling, deeply researched, and provocative tour-de-force, Unraveled is not just the story of a pair of pants, but also the story of our global economy and our role in it. Told with piercing insight and unprecedented reporting, Unraveled challenges us to use our relationship with our jeans--and all that we wear--to reclaim our central role as citizens to refashion a society

in which all people can thrive and preserve the planet for generations to come.

Excerpt from Life
and Death: A Reply
to the Rev. J.

Baldwin Brown's
Lectures on Conditional

Immortality Tells us, much Of the printed matter put forth by sundry advocates of that doctrine is Of

ghastly dulness, and has' proved a weariness to his flesh. I know of no excuses for the existence Of such literature except these two: first, that every considerable movement in theology has in past ages been accompanied by a flood Of pamphlets and articles which would be very painful reading to a modern lecturer; and, secondly, that Providence seems to avenge the steady refusal Of the ablest writers to handle these questions, by less eloquent

brethren, who, if not so learned or brilliant, are Often much more seriously in earnest than their superiors. But genuine love for truth will lead us not to be ashamed even

of the most illiterate endeavours to extend its sovereignty In the world. Courageous faith also prompts us to sympathy with all who share it, even if their dialect be Galilean, and their argument how and then a little paradoxical. Yet Mr.

Baldwin Brown will not forget, while honouring a few Of us beyond our deserts with SO distinguished a share Of his attention, that on the same side are a multitude Of other writers, ancient and modern, Asiatic, European, and American, whose learning and capacity it would be impertinent alike for me to extol or for him to depreciate.
