Developing countries, especially African countries, face a myriad of problems as they try to counteract decades of national poverty and political ineffectiveness. If these countries are to secure an active role in world politics, they need communication techniques that are both broad and effective. In this book, Dr. Ngwainmbi presents a comprehensive approach to media and communication in developing countries. The author analyzes traditional methods of communication--dance, ritual, caste, religious oracles, and more--and shows how these

This book provides a comprehensive approach of the media, journalism and politics in Sub-Saharan Francophone Africa. The author argues that there are common features that the media and journalism share in the seventeen countries of Francophone Africa and these make the local media systems different from what they are in neighboring English-speaking African countries, and in the rest of the world. The approach of the media in French-speaking Africa has not only to be "de-Westernized”, but also to step out of general overviews considering “African media.” This project shows the historical, political, economic and sociological characteristics of the media systems of seventeen French-speaking countries of Africa. A Short Introduction

This title was first published in 1976. The attainment of political independence by more than ninety countries since the Second World War has directed attention to the conditions of economic helplessness and dependency that continue to frustrate the development of at least two-thirds of the world's nations. Two and sometimes three decades of disappointing efforts to extricate themselves from dependency have begun to provoke serious reappraisals in many lands about the entire concept of development.

Accordingly, the time ahead will surely be a period of growing cultural-communications struggle ? intra- and inter - nationally ? between those seeking the end of domination and those striving to maintain it.

The intention of this work is to assist, in a very modest way, in the outcome of this struggle.

Information is regarded as

Pervasive media, expanding information occupations and the development of the internet convince many that living in an

Webster sets out to make sense of the information explosion, taking a sceptical look at what thinkers mean when they refer to the Information Society, and critically examining the major post-war approaches to informational development. The fourth edition of this classic study brings it up to date with new research and with social and technological changes – from the 'Twitter Revolutions' of North Africa, to financial crises that introduced the worst recession in a life

More outspoken than in previous editions, Webster urges abandonment of Information Society scenarios, preferring analysis of the informatization of long-established relationships. This book is a key resource on the foundations of Marxist Media, Cultural and Communication Studies. It presents 18 contributions that show how Marx's analyses of capitalism, the commodity, class, labour, work, exploitation, surplus-value, dialectics, crises, ideology, class struggles, and communism help us to understand media, cultural and communications in 21st century informational capitalism.

La seconde partie, plus courte et diverse, séduira tous ceux qui prônent le dialogue entre les disciplines, en particulier entre la littérature et la philosophie. Une inspiration commune conduit les auteurs du livre à mettre en lumière l'ouverture et la dimension cosmopolite de la réflexion philosophique, telle qu'elle est menée au Centre Gaston Bachelard sur l'imaginaire et la rationalité de l'Université de Bourgogne."

À travers neuf chapitres, traitant chacun, profondément, d'objets divers mais logiquement articulés, pointe aussi un parti-pris épistémique pour la méthode de l'interdisciplinarité que l'auteur ne s'emploie pas seulement à rappeler, mais dont il explique les fondements scientifiques. Au bout de l'ouvrage, s'amorce un dialogue inédit sur le déséquilibre mondial de l'information avec l'ancien Directeur Général de l'UNESCO, Amadou Mahtar Mbow, initiateur de la commission internationale sur les problèmes de la communication. forms of inter-play. The author refers to Weber, Innis, Habermas and Foucault to develop her argument. The impact of the information society' are multiform and transdisciplinary. There are few areas of social, political and economic life that have not been affected or challenged by the new technologies of information and communication. In this short introduction, Armand Mattelart unpacks the notion of the information society, and examines why it has become the dominant paradigm for social change in the 21st Century. Critically, he also asks why the notion has come to dominant in the absence of any critical examination of the conditions under which it has been produced. Combining a long-term historical and geopolitical perspective, Mattelart questions the axioms used to legitimate the Information Society and critically assesses the ways in which it has been conceptualised as a theoretical concept as well as policy making tool. This introduction will be of interest to all students of media and communication, as well as social scientists in general. This book identifies and analyses the main socio-economic trends that characterize Vivendi, the French mass media conglomerate, and explores how they have oriented its development and evolution. Philippe Bouquillion explores the industrial, financial, globalization and public policy issues in the various sectors in which Vivendi is involved, paying particular attention to recorded music, pay television, publishing, video games, advertising and telecommunications. He examines Vivendi's role as a key global player in the entertainment and cultural industries as a result of its established position as world number one in recorded music via Universal Music Group. He also highlights Vivendi's involvement in various national markets, including their notable strategies in African markets and their significance in the telecommunications and television markets in Italy. This book will be of interest to students, scholars and researchers of global media, media and cultural industries, and political economy.
