Snow Leopards Lady Veteran Shifters Book 1

Transforming Tales examines the idea of bodily transformation in French literature composed between the twelfth and the fifteenth centuries. Focusing on well-known stories (Narcissus and Echo; Pygmalion and his statue) and figures (Merlin, the werewolf), the book approaches a number of canonical texts in ways which will be accessible and helpful to students and scholars of medieval literature. Not only does it explore the ways in which stories of transformation enable an insight into medieval ideas about humanity, it also considers the way in which these that's completely separate from the hopeless romantic infatuation with two utterly unattainable people. On further reflection, Carivel's life is actually a bit of a mess. Senovo struggles to keep his lid on his "furry little problem" almost every night. Being a shapeshifter is a challenge he never asked for or wanted, any more than he wanted to be castrated and made into a eunuch after his parents sold him to the Priests' Guild as a child. Andoc, First Warrior of Draebard, firmly believes that most problems can be solved by the liberal application of a) natural charm, b) good food and c) really great sex. Or, failing that, by banging heads together until the parties involved see sense. Now, however, the Alyrion Empire is invading, and the village chief wants him to travel to the rival Mereni tribe with Carivel and Senovo to negotiate a defense treaty. is a whole galaxy out there with other worlds that use Magic to travel. Though the worlds are inhabited by those creatures we read about in stories. Such as Werewolves, Vampires, Beasts, Changelings, Fairies, and even Goblins to name a few. But some are still on Earth, if you look hard enough. Though as a human, you might not want to do that. There's no such thing as spaceships going across the stars. It's all done by Magical means as Kevin is about to find out. His new trainer, Marris, is a no-nonsense kind of gal, with ears and a tail, who doesn't take crap from anyone. Except, she is about to find that Kevin doesn't take kindly to her attitude. But it seems that bounty hunters all have chips on their shoulders, and MARRISA's chip is the size of a barn. Can they work together, or will Kevin have to ditch her and find someone else to train him? No one wants to work with MARRISA, but her bosses are telling her that Kevin's her problem now. Join the pair as they try to figure out how not to kill each other. And watch the sparks fly between them, especially when a fellow female bounty hunter has a thing for Kevin!

the hole in his heart + a curvy reporter on an undercover assignment + an island paradise where all is not as it seems = one dangerously hot romance. Curvy Chloe Kent worked her ass off to get a housekeeping job on Harper Island. The island is practically paradise: white beaches, blue skies, luxury facilities... and it's all a lie. Just like her. She's not a cleaner desperate for work; she's a reporter, hot on the trail of the scoop of a lifetime. But what she finds on the island is beyond anything she ever imagined. Billionaire lion shifter Mathis Delacourt has everything any man could want.

The holidays always seem to bring out the best in everyone, with heartfelt hugs for long-missed friends, sincere smiles in the spirit of the season, and a feeling of magic in the air... This scintillating collection of paranormal romances celebrates the holidays as never before. From a shape-shifting leopardess who wants a pack-mate to be her soulmate to a surprise snowstorm that brings an incredible gift, these three tales by Nalini Singh, Erin McCarthy, and Jean Johnson will stir your spirit in all the right places. As the visual representation of an essentially oral text, Sylvia Huot points out, the medieval illuminated manuscript has a theatrical, performative quality. She perceives the tension between implied oral performance and real visual artifact as a fundamental aspect of thirteenth- and fourteenth-century poetics. In this generously illustrated volume, Huot examines manuscript texts both from the performance-oriented lyric tradition of chanson courtoise, or courtly love lyric, and from the self-consciously literary tradition of Old French narrative poetry. She demonstrates that the evolution of the lyrical romance and dit, narrative poems which incorporate thematic and rhetorical elements of the lyric, was responsible for a progressive redefinition of lyric poetry as a written medium and the emergence of an explicitly written literary tradition uniting lyric and narrative poetics. Huot first investigates the nature of the vernacular book in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, analyzing organization, page layout, rubrication, and illumination in a series of manuscripts. She then describes the relationship between poetics and manuscript format in specific texts, including works by widely read medieval authors such as Guillaume de Lorris, Jean de Meun, and Guillaume de Machaut, as well as by lesser-known writers including Nicole de Margival and Watriquet de Couvin. Huot focuses on the writers' characteristic modifications of lyric poetics; their use of writing and performance as theme; their treatment of the poet as singer or writer; and of the lady as implied reader or listener; and the ways in which these features of the text were elaborated by scribes and illuminators. Her readings reveal how medieval poets and book-makers conceived their common project, and how they distinguished their respective roles.

who abduct and enslave. And though she appears to be human herself, Eden is an alien, a Raka, distinguished by her golden hair and skin, and gifted with the ominous ability to kill without remorse -- and with total accuracy. That is, until the fateful night she has one shot to eliminate her target, a human slaver -- and misses. "Failure" is not in Eden's vocabulary. Neither is "partner" -- but that's what she is forcibly assigned after recovering from her disastrous mission.
