Planning Policy Statement 4: Planning for Sustainable Economic Growth sets out planning policies for economic development. This includes development within the B Use Classes, public and community uses and main town centre uses. They also relate to other development which achieves at least one of the following objectives: provision of employment opportunities; generation of wealth; and, production or generation of economic output or product. These policies do not apply to housing development. If you intend to run your own Child Minding business you will need these checklists, forms & documents, which will need to be filled in to comply with the Statutory Framework for the Early Years Foundation Stage. Do not worry about pricing your services as a price list has been provided. A contract and other documents are also included to help you to run your business effectively and efficiently.

A practical guide for childminders in the early stages of setting up their business, or those considering caring for children in their own home, this work shows how to target the right market, advertise and develop your business and manage the financial side.

How we raise young children is one of today's most highly personalized and sharply politicized issues, in part because each of us can claim some level of "expertise." The debate has intensified as discoveries about our development-in the womb and in the first months and years-have reached the popular media. How can we use our burgeoning knowledge to assure the well-being of all young children, for their own sake as well as for the sake of our nation? Drawing from new findings, this book presents important conclusions about nature-versus-nurture, the impact of being born into a working family, the effect of politics on programs for children, the costs and benefits of intervention, and other issues. The committee issues a series of challenges to decision makers regarding the quality of child care, issues of racial and ethnic diversity, the integration of children's cognitive and emotional development, and more. Authoritative yet accessible, From Neurons to Neighborhoods presents the evidence about "brain wiring" and how kids learn to speak, think, and regulate their behavior. It examines the effect of the climate-family, child care, community-within which the child grows.

Can you remember those unexpected, gloriously lazy days of childhood, where time seemed to stretch out forever? The challenge as a parent is how to make sure those days actually happen and don't get lost in the fast-paced frenzy of everyday life. Zoe Lake is passionate about creating something out of nothing and planning mini adventures with her ever-enthusiastic husband and persistently dancing daughter. In Adventures at Home Zoe shares her secrets and you will discover that all you need is a bit of time and imagination to create memorable moments together. Adventures at Home will inspire you to plan your own immersive experiences at home, which can be pulled together using what you already have, with very little notice. Zoe shares over 40 inspirational ways you can plan fun-filled family time into your lives without spending much money or leaving your home. Adventures at Home will encourage you and your family to get creative, engage with nature and your immediate environment.

Since Ofsted introduced its new graded system in April 2005 there has been increasing pressure on childminders to prove that they are running an 'outstanding' business. Many parents admit that they would not even consider a childminder who has not at least achieved a 'good' grading and they are prepared to pay more money and travel further to secure a place with an 'outstanding' provider. This book, written by a practising childminder who has herself achieved an outstanding grade for her childcare service, shows how it is possible to show the Ofsted inspector that you are worthy of the highest award for your childminding service. Topics covered include: - What to expect from your inspection - Regulations and legislation - Your responsibilities to parents and children - What the Early Years Foundation Stage means to Childminders - Achieving the Every Child Matters Outcomes - Essential paperwork and checklists - Reflecting on your practice This guide is packed with practical advice, along with exercises to test your knowledge and understanding of what is expected from you during your inspection.

Start and Run a Business from Home

A companion to "Starting Your Own Childminding Business", this title provides a guide for all child care practitioners in a home-based setting.

Drawing on over 12 years of experience of running a business from her own home, Allison Lee gets to the heart of what you like to be a childminder. Whether you are thinking of starting out and would like an honest account of all that the job is like, or you are already experienced in the role and are looking for some tips from a fellow childminder, this is the book for you. The book looks at: * The role of the childminder * The daily routine * Working in partnership with parents * What it is like to work from home, for you and your family * How to arrange your fees and contracts * How to deal with common issues such as discipline and behaviour * How to respond to complaints Illustrated throughout with real life examples, this book will provide childminders with tried and tested support, advice and tips on how to do the job well, from one professional to another. The Government has set itself the challenging target of halving the number of children living in poverty by 2010-11 and eradicating child poverty by 2020. With 2010 fast approaching, Ministers are still committed to the targets, and the wanted to ascertain whether DWP has the right measures in place to meet its objectives. Significant progress has been made but the target remains challenging: there are still 2.8 million children living in poverty and the most recent data shows a slight increase in this number. The Committee is convinced of the damaging effect of poverty on a child's self-esteem and mental health and also its effects in contributing to social exclusion. Children growing up in poverty are also more likely to have poorer and poorer educational outcomes. There are groups of children who have a much higher risk of growing up in poverty, for example if they or a parent are disabled, and there are higher poverty rates amongst Pakistani, Bangladeshi and black children. Getting parents into sustainable work should be the focus of the strategy to lift them and their children out of poverty. One of the concerns that the Jobseekers' Allowance regime is not sufficiently flexible to reflect the complexity of lone parent families. To eradicate child poverty by 2020, the Government needs a long-term strategy on benefit income for those who are unable to work. If benefits are uprated in line with inflation, the gap between the incomes of those in work and those on benefits will become wider, as benefits will not keep pace with earnings. As poverty is measured as a percentage of median earnings, the gap between the two for the 2020 target, in particular, are serious.

This report takes a critical look at the costs and benefits for individuals and families of turning to self-employment as a route out of economic disadvantage. Drawing on in-depth interviews with self-employed people, their partners and children, the report argues that self-employment is much more likely to be a household rather than an individual undertaking. It makes the case for the need to consider work-life balance in relation to the self-employed.

How to be an Outstanding Childminder

The old Victorian vicarage has stood empty for over a decade in the village of Filius. With rumours of its haunted past, everyone stays away... Well, almost everyone! Ten-year-old Catherine Rose has become obsessed with the rundown ruin and makes daily diary entries about its only surviving inhabitant, the clever crow. When twelve-year-old Matthew Khan and his dad move into the vicarage, Catherine's obsession increases. Before too long, the newfound friendship traps them both into a cruel world mastered by the clever crow himself. As their fight for survival starts, they must discover the secrets that are hidden deep within the darkness and uncover the truth behind Crow and his precious vicarage. The only question is... Will you dare to delve into the darkness with them? Darkmoor: The Darkness Discovered is the first of a 5 part series, aimed for children aged 8 and upwards. It is a mixture of fantasy, mystery and adventure which, as a child Victoria loved to read for herself. She was inspired by C.S Lewis, particularly The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe. "My motivation to finally start writing my children's novel came from my ten-year-old son. I flippantly told him, with hard work and determination you can be whatever you want. To which my son asked me, when I was little, what had I wanted to be? I answered him, 'To become a children's author.' Then, he simply asked, 'Why didn't you then?' That night, I started planning and creating Darkmoor," says Victoria.
