Years of observation and reflection in a classroom session, allow us to continuously reinvent the wheel of teaching and learning pedagogy. This continuous introspection and reinvention orients into best practices. In the same stream, this articulation, is an outcome of immaculate observation meant for learners at the tertiary level. The scholarly approach adopted in this book aligns with the requirement of acquiring a language, especially the speaking skills. The need for effective communication skills in the new millennium has surged and has become all the more important. English continues to be the dominant language in Science, Technology, Engineering and Management (STEM). It is therefore obvious that the growth curve of a person hinges on effective communication skills. To perform exceptionally well in interviews and group discussions, it is imperative for students to manage their communication skills effectively. This book attempts to prepare the students to excel in it as well as group discussions and give an impressive interview which will ultimately increase their credibility. Indians have always had the upper-hand in international scenario due to their exceptional English language and communication skills. However, as we see from the last decade many non-English speaking countries especially China, Korea and others are honing and improving their English skills and trying to shake India's numero uno position. Hence it has become necessary for we Indians continuously upgrade and improve our communication skills to maintain its position at global level. Therefore, this book is packed with practical tactics and tasks within a framework of ten chapters. The live situations used for discussions, give an insight into the corporate work culture and this makes the learner familiar with business vocabulary. A brief explanation of concepts followed by activities, gently transcends the conversation skills from a preliminary level of self-introduction to an advanced level of board room presentation. The additional topics on Ethical Dilemma, and Group Discussions are meant to stimulate the thought process of the students and engage them in an interactive conversation. This handbook has also been drafted to serve English teachers who can evaluate students with the help of the given rubrics and make the sessions vibrant and simplify the teaching learning process. Speaking and interacting with a partner will encourage a slow learner to overcome the hesitancy and speak freely. Imagine a learner-centered classroom bustling with students engaged in speaking activities, using gestures, facial expressions, body language and intonations without the fear of being assessed. This book guarantees to evoke enthusiasm and the students will begin to communicate with a Panache.

Materials are presented from a seminar that brought together practicing German and British educationalists to compare the differing curriculum decisions and implementation processes in England and Wales with those in the Federal Republic of Germany. A foreword provides the objectives, methods, and funding bodies. Section 2 is a comparative introduction to the text that makes recommendations for further study. Detailed comments on the formal structure of technical and vocational education in the Federal Republic of Germany are offered. Specific topics are the upper secondary vocational school system, vocational training at upper secondary level outside schools, and curriculum processes. Section 4 is a glossary of terms used in the three specialists reports. The next three sections contain the reports of the technician education, business education, and vocational education groups. Each report describes the structure of the educational system in the two countries as determined from visits and the curriculum and/or curriculum development. Section 8 presents the conclusions and suggestions for further study from each of the three groups. The final section includes the seminar timetable with a list of institutions studied during the seminar and a list of membership in the seminar. (YLB)

Practice-based learning—the kind of education that comes from experiencing real work in real situations—has always been a prerequisite to qualification in professions such as medicine. However, there is growing interest in how practice-based models of learning can assist the initial preparation for and further development of skills for a new profession. Seen as a tool of first-time training, it is now viewed as a potentially important facet of professional development and life-long learning. This book provides perspectives on practice-based learning from a range of disciplines and fields of work. The collection here draws on a wide spectrum of perspectives to illustrate as well as to critically examine practice-based learning. The book's two sections first explore the conceptual foundations of learning through practice, and then provide detailed examples of its implementation. Long-standing practice-based approaches to learning have been used in many professions and trades. Indeed, admission to the trades and major professions (e.g. medicine, law, education) often requires completing extended periods of practice in authentic practice settings. However, the growing contemporary interest in using practice-based learning in more extensive contexts has arisen from concerns about the direct employability of graduates and the increasing focus on occupation-specific courses in both vocations and higher education. This book addresses critical skill shortages, rapidly transforming work requirements and an aging workforce combined with a looming shortage of new workforce entrants. We must better understand how existing models of practice-based learning are enacted in order to identify how they can be applied to different kinds of employment and workplaces. The collection here provides a rich and varied set of examples of practice-based learning in a variety of contexts, and offers a critical analysis of the ways in which practice-based learning is enacted, and appraised through an analysis of the traditions, purposes, and processes that support this learning—including curriculum models and pedagogic practices.

Principles of Effective Online Teaching

This book challenges the orthodox approach to the teaching of second language listening, which is based upon the asking and answering of comprehension questions. The book's central argument is that a preoccupation with the notion of 'comprehension' has led teachers to focus upon the product of listening, in the form of answers to questions, ignoring the listening process itself. The author provides an informed account of the psychological processes which make up the skill of listening, and analyses the characteristics of the speech signal from which listeners have to construct a message. Drawing upon this information, the book proposes a radical alternative to the comprehension approach and provides for intensive small-scale practice in aspects of listening that are perceptually or cognitively demanding for the learner. Listening in the Language Classroom was winner of the Ben Warren International Trust House Prize in 2008.

Muhammad Yunus is that rare thing: a bona fide visionary. His dream is the total eradication of poverty from the world. In 1983, against the advice of banking and government officials, Yunus established Grameen, a bank devoted to providing the poorest of Bangladesh with minuscule loans. Grameen Bank, based on the belief that credit is a basic human right, not the privilege of a fortunate few, now provides over 2.5 billion dollars of micro-loans to more than two million families in rural Bangladesh. Ninety-four percent of Yunus's clients are women, and repayment rates are near 100 percent. Around the world, micro-lending programs inspired by Grameen are blossoming, with more than three hundred programs established in the United States alone. Banker to the Poor is Muhammad Yunus's memoir of how he decided to change his life in order to help the world's poor. In it he traces the intellectual and spiritual journey that led him to fundamentally rethink the economic relationship between rich and poor, and the challenges he and his colleagues faced in founding Grameen. He also provides wise, hopeful guidance for anyone who would like to join him in "putting homelessness and destitution in a museum so that one day our children will visit it and ask how we could have allowed such a terrible thing to go on for so long." The definitive history of micro-credit direct from the man that conceived of it, Banker to the Poor is necessary and inspirational reading for anyone interested in economics, public policy, philanthropy, social history, and business. Muhammad Yunus was born in Bangladesh and earned his Ph.D. in economics in the United States at Vanderbilt University, where he was deeply influenced by the civil rights movement. He still lives in Bangladesh, and travels widely around the world on behalf of Grameen Bank and the concept of micro-credit.

"Innovation is universally recognized as a key component of first world economies that is vital for continued prosperity. Innovation is driven by the generation of effective novelty in other words, creativity. However, both in higher education and also in business and industry, insufficient effort is being made to encourage and develop creativity, with negative consequences for innovation. This is partly due to inadequate understanding of what creativity is and how it can be fostered. This book draws on complementary views of creativity and innovations as a business process and as a social-psychological model to create a more detailed and more highly differentiated model which is capable of serving as a practical foundation for diagnosing, analyzing, optimizing and fostering creativity and innovation in a variety of organizational settings. It is built around a large number of case studies and down-to-earth examples, and offers many concrete suggestions for fostering what the authors call functional creativity."--Publisher's website.

Global Perspectives on International Student Experiences in Higher Education examines a wide range of international student experiences empirically from multiple perspectives that includes socio-cultural identities, contextual influences on their learning experiences, their wellbeing experiences, and their post-study experiences. This collection sheds light on the over five million students who cross geographical, cultural, and educational borders for higher education outside of their home countries. This book consists of nineteen chapters spread across four sections. Throughout the book, contributors question the existing assumptions and values of international student programs and services, re-examine and explore new perspectives to present the emerging challenges and critical evaluations of student experiences and their identities. Offering a rich understanding of these students and their global college experiences in Africa, Asia, Australia, Europe and Americas, this book offers research-based strategies to effectively recruit, engage, support, and retain international students as they participate in higher educational settings around the world. This book provides resource material to benefit educators, policymakers, and staff who work closely with international students in higher education.
